I have used this on cotton fabrics and silk. I really like the ease of use and the color results. The colors on my cottons after they were heat set did not fade after the first washing. But yes eventually you do get some fading after washings. The silk results were just fine. The silk did not feel very stiff and yes using the Milsoft did help bring back some of the softness.

Beautiful rich vibrant colors which mix and dilute well. Work great for Serti watercolor and salt techniques. For large pieces take to a Dry Cleaner to have pressed for 30 seconds at 300 degrees using a "hot head" (heat only no steam).

I like Dye-na-flow. I have gotten some very intense colors silks without the whole steam thing. Be sure to dry completely then heat set carefully to maximize color.

Love love. love this product. My watermelon shoes turned out great! Beware the dye spreads upon contact with fabric. Once you get the hang of it you can gain more control of the pigment.

WASH with COLD WATER!! I luckily made a practice scarf before using these paints for a silk painting workshop for high school aged students. I used Synthropol before painting and then again after heat setting my scarf with an iron. I washed it in HOT water since the Synthropol label says "works best with HOT water". All my colors disappeared! I was so disappointed! I read all the instructions I could find online and on the paint jars but nowhere did it mention to use cold water! A few more instructions would have been nice. But I called Dharma and they were very nice and helpful (as always) and said to wash Dyenaflow with Synthropol on COLD. Just tried that and it seems to have worked great! SO these paints were great! (Previously I have used the Tifix silk dyes but I wanted something simpler to use and set.) I loved that these paints didn't stain your fingers for days (like some dyes) and it was nice to not have to steam set them. The colors were pretty and the students loved them! The items came on time. Thanks Dharma!

Excellent colours for silk painting. Just loved the end result. Each colour is giving the right depth of the colour. Used various brands for silk painting but this is the best.

It's better to make the color yourself. Even though it's tricky sometimes. The yellow pigment precipitates on the bottom very fast even when u take out a small amount with pipette on ur palitra it just separates almost immediately. So if u dont mix it before each deep you won't get an even ochre color on fabric
